

Lakeport Plantation

The Lakeport Plantation house, built in 1859 along the Mississippi River in Chicot County, Arkansas, stands as one of the Delta's premiere historic structures. Remarkably preserved with many original features intact, Lakeport offers a rare window into plantation life before and after the Civil War. Now cared for by Arkansas State University, the site shares powerful stories of slavery, sharecropping, and the Johnson family through guided tours and award-winning exhibits.

- Lakeport Plantation - Technical Reports

Lakeport Plantation - Technical Reports

Technical Reports

Technical Report #1: Parge Coating

Technical Report #2: Chimneys

Technical Report #3: Foundation & Footers

Technical Report #4: Windows

Technical Report #5: Shingled Roof

Technical Report #6: Guttering & Sheet Metal Work

Technical Report #7: Cornice, Siding & Paint

Technical Report #8: Lakeport Porches

Technical Report #9: Braced Frame Construction

Technical Report #10: Smokehouse & Mechanicals

Surveys & Research

Archeological Investigations at Lakeport Plantation: Randall Guending \(Arkansas Archeological Survey\), May 2003